Big Audience Fine Concert

The Ulster County Music Association started off with flying colors on Friday evening when close to a thousand people attended the first concert of the association series at the Kingston High School auditorium. There were a great many music lovers from the county outside the city and it was an enthusiastic and appreciative audience that greeted Marion Telva, the young Metropolitan Opera Company contralto and Allen McQuhae, the popular tenor.

There was something in the quality of the two entirely dissimilar voices that made one think of orchestral instruments. Marion Telva's rich contralto voice having the beautiful quality of a clear, ringing horn; while Mr. McQuhae's voice was like that of the wood-wind instruments, so that in the closing number on the program, and one of the most enjoyed numbers of the entire evening, the duet from Il Trovatore, there was a peculiarly charming orchestral effect.

Of course the two first numbers, "Il Mio Tesoro Intanto"—Don Giovanni by Mozart, as sung by Allen McQuhae and the aria, "O Don Fatale," from Don Carlos by Verdi, as sung by Marion Telva, were classics that called out much applause, in the latter Miss Telva's marvelously even and powerful voice finding full scope.

The audience also greatly enjoyed the group of Italian and German songs sung by Allen McQuhae, who gave as an encore number, "To the Children," by Rachmaninoff; and the group of German songs which Miss Telva sang, following them with another appealing Tschaikowsky song. But they all, musicians and music lovers admittedly got the most out of the songs sung in English, as why shouldn't they?

A lovely Irish brogue added to the peculiarly pathetic quality of Mr. McQuhae's fine tenor voice, made the old Irish songs, arranged by Hughes Low Back Car; Foggy Dew; By the Light of the Moon; and Kitty My Love, particularly delightful, and the audience was correspondingly enthusiastic. "Kitty O'Toole," by Prothero, was a decidedly appropriate encore and as decidedly a hit as sung inimitably by Mr. McQuhae.

Dramatic and vivid in coloring as sung by Miss Telva, was "Over the Steppe," by Gretchaninoff, while "Inter Nos," by Mac Fayden, was a tragedy of poetry and tonality. In fact, Miss Telva seems to give an especially inspired interpretation of the Russian composers whose songs she so well sang. Her final encore was "Love is the Wind," by MacFayden.

The accompanying by Charles A. Baker at the piano was inspiring.

So successful was this first concert of the five being given under the Ulster County Music Association, from the viewpoint of enthusiastic audience; fine and splendidly rendered program and pleasing artists, that congratulations were heaped upon Harry P. Dodge who was the ever musically-faithful instigator of this project which will mean so much to the people of Ulster county this fall and winter.

The next concert will occur on Tuesday evening, December 1, when the two piano recital will be given by Maier and Pattison and when it is known that Mr. Dodge, who has heard these artists avows earnestly that he would walk to New York city—if that was the only way he could get to hear them—to hear them play, it will be readily appreciated what a musical treat is next in store for the members of the Ulster County Music Association.

75 YEARS WITH ROAD.

Albert Stone, 90, Honored by New York Central.

Seventy-eight years ago a New York and Harlem horse car ran over a 12-year old boy playing on the track, says the New York Sun. The boy's injuries necessitated the amputation of his left leg, and the youngster regarded the maimed years of the future with trepidation. When he recovered from his injuries he went to Robert Schuyler, president of the road that was later to become the New York Central, and asked that he be given a job. The president promised the lad employment as soon as he was 15 years old.

Albert Stone, 90 years, received the congratulations of the officers and directors of his company upon the completion of his seventy-fifth year in the company's service. The crippled boy who pleaded for a job has remained with the company, during a record of efficient, satisfactory service. He is a statistician in the road's accounting department.

P. E. Crowley, president of the road, presented the veteran employe with an engrossed resolution of respect and congratulation signed by 500 officers, employes and friends. Chauncey M. Depew, 92-year-old chairman of the road, who has served there fifty-nine years, was one of the signers.

Mr. Stone refused a pension and retirement twenty years ago and he refused them again yesterday.

"I enjoy the job," he explained.

He lives in Woodlawn and commutes to the company's offices every day.

Mr. Stone is a brother of the late Henry A. Stone of Flatbush avenue, this city, and an uncle of Thomas A. Stone.

Who Shot the Hen In Sealed Verdict

That Was Only Question Left for Jury After Judge Directed Verdict Against Powers on License Question.

Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck at the conclusion of the action tried in supreme court Friday to recover penalties for violation of the conservation law, directed a verdict for the People of the State of New York against both Patrick and Irving Powers, defendants, for $60 in each action. Judge Hasbrouck held that Mr. Powers and his son were hunting without a license. They held resident hunting licenses while they were, according to the opinion of the court, residents of New Jersey.

The only question which was submitted to the jury was whether Patrick Powers shot the hen pheasant which Game Protector Weed charged him with shooting. If he is found guilty by the jury it will involve another $60 penalty.

Mr. Powers took the stand in his own behalf Friday afternoon and testified that he was working at New Jersey. His wife and family were there and he spent about half his time there. He claimed that he still maintained his legal residence at Gardiner, where he had last voted. However, when he signed the application for a hunting license he stated that he was a resident of New York city and gave an address in 17th street as his residence and post office address. On the stand he said he has not resided there for some time and that he had been there but occasionally of late. About 20 years ago when he was first married he had stayed there. He said he did not claim that he resided there at the time he took out his license to hunt in 1924.

The law provides that when a false statement is made on an application for a hunting license the license is void. As he gave an erroneous address on his application the plaintiff claimed he was hunting without a license as the law held such a license void.

Irving Powers, the son, gave the same address on his application and his license was also void. He being a minor was compelled to legally reside where his father resided and as the court held his father resided in New Jersey it followed that the son was also a resident of New Jersey and therefore his resident license to hunt was void.

The action was hotly contested throughout. The action hinged on the residence of Mr. Powers and the fact whether he shot the hen pheasant in question.

Three charges were named in the complaint against Mr. Powers. First, shooting a hen pheasant. Second, shooting a pheasant out of season. There being no open season on hen pheasants it would follow that if he shot the hen it would be shot during the closed season. Third, hunting with a resident license while he was a resident of another state which rendered his license void and technically made him a hunter without a license.

The jury was directed to bring in a sealed verdict Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock stating whether Mr. Powers is guilty of shooting the hen pheasant.

Continuous Music at Ball

Not only will the Junior League Ball be a gorgeous spectacle and a side-splitting entertainment, but it will be one of the best dances the Junior League has ever given. And that is saying a great deal for this organization has a high standard of excellence to maintain after the Oriental Ball of last year whose beauty and perfection still linger in the minds of those who were present as an attempt that would be difficult to duplicate. This year, the music will be continuous so that the maddest devotee of the Terpsichorean Muse need not be still an instant. Zucca's orchestra will be the band for the circus, maintaining the circus illusion in their costumes, and later there will be Jimmy Conner's orchestra, the classical jazz artists of Keeney's Theatre who are well known to all movie fans. These two orchestras will alternate throughout the evening and will play all the latest dancing hits so that probably even the animals will be obliged to dance. Who knows but that we shall see the lion and the lamb one-stepping round together or a quadrille in which Alice in Wonderland's friends, the griffon and the mock-turtle may take part.

Prince Too Gay To Please Papa

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Oct. 17.—Although the Prince of Wales has been received home with acclaim there was a general impression today that once the home coming is over he will get a considerable amount of admonition concerning his public conduct.

The Rev. Dick Sheppard, outspoken rector of St. Martins-in-the-Fields, has openly criticized the prince for making his life one of too much levity. J. St. Strachey, editor of "The Spectator," in an editorial today says the time has come when the prince would be meeting the wishes of the people if he made it impossible for critics to say that he "exhausts himself in giving amusement," too much of his time. Strachey suggests that the prince had better seriously take up some public cause and devote his time to it.

King George is said to hold similar views. In fact he is reported to have actually mapped out a course of work and study for the prince.

Sunken Adams Raised Friday

The tug Adams of the Cornell Line, which sank last week in the Hudson river opposite Linlithgo, was raised on Friday by the derrick Century and that evening was brought to the Cornell Shops here for repairs. The tug sank while bound up the river with the tug Mead in charge of a large tow. While off Linlithgo the tug filled with water and before she sank the crew were gotten off safely onto the tug Mead. The Adams sank with her bow resting on the river bottom and the stern projecting slightly above the water. The derrick Century used to raise the tug is the same derrick that was used in an effort to raise the sunken submarine in Block Island Sound which was rammed and sunk by the steamer City of Rome with a loss of over thirty lives.

Elks' Charity Ball Next Friday

The night of the Fashion Fete and Charity Ball of Kingston Lodge, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, approaches—the ball which formally opens the gay fall social season in the New York State Armory, and one that promises to be an exceptionally brilliant affair. Friday evening, October 23 is the date. The armory will be elaborately decorated and proceeds go to increase the Hospital and Charity Fund.

The Fashion Fete, with Miss Margaret Richards in charge, will be the main feature of the evening, followed by general dancing, music to be furnished by John Erne and his Imperial Broadcasting Orchestra, and the program will be one of unusual catchy dance numbers.

Of course there will be refreshments, and the "inner man" will be well cared for by an efficient corps of servers.

That the ball will not only be a brilliant social affair but also a huge financial success is assured, as the sale of tickets is unusually large, and the executives in charge are enthusiastic and delighted in their reports. The group of gentlemen who are sponsoring this affair and who predict a "best ever" ball, are Major George F. Chandler, Martin Cantine, Saugerties; Philip Schantz, Highland; C. V. A. Decker, N. D. J. Murphy, Dr. Fred G. Snyder, Everett Fowler, James R. Higley, Dr. A. L. Hill, Morris Samter, A. H. Cook, Edgar T. Shultis, William H. Kolts, Edgar Dempsey, Ralph Cohen, Dr. Mark O'Meara and Dr. C. L. Gas Buggy Coming On O & W Railway

When and If It Comes Several Men Will Be Laid Off—Rumor Says Change Will Take Place November 1.

Prospects of several men being laid off on the local branch of the O. & W. railroad loom big. A number of men have been laid off on the main line at the Middletown shops, but up to the present time no men have been laid off on the local branch.

Some time ago it was announced that a gasoline motor car would soon be tried out on the local branch. It is rumored that the change will be made about the first of November, but at present the motor car has not been received. When the motor car is put on at least seven men will be laid off on the local branch. There will probably be four extra trainmen and at least three yard employes when the gasoline car is put in operation who will be laid off.

Several branch roads with little passenger traffic and short hauls have placed the gasoline cars in operation and have found them to be successful. If the O. & W. places one in operation about the first of November it will be the first one to be tried out on local roads and undoubtedly its operation will be watched with keen interest.

Gasoline Drop Cheers Motorists

The gasoline situation continues to cheer the motorists. Friday the Standard Oil station in the town of Ulster dropped the price a cent to 18 cents a gallon and immediately the Tydol and Pan-Am pumps put out 18 cent signs. Today the 18 cent price is general.

It was but a few days ago when a cent drop was announced and the price went to 19 cents. The lower price of gasoline is general throughout the east and for a time Kingston has been one of the high spots in price. For the past four weeks Kingston has been one of the high spots in price. For the past four weeks Kingston has been two cents above the average. Ellenville has been one cent under the Kingston price for about three weeks. Six weeks ago gas in Connecticut was selling for 17 cents.

The present price will probably hold for a time and there may be further drops in price before the spring increase comes. For some time past it has been the custom to have slightly lower prices in the winter months with the price gradually going up early in the spring.

Ross is being closely guarded in the Albany county jail. He pleaded guilty of burglary and grand larceny but he will not be sentenced until after the grand jury probe.

"I don't want to talk unduly about myself," said the Tiger Salamander, "but I am interesting."

"What in the world do you mean about talking duly or unduly about yourself?" asked the Spotted Salamander.

"I mean that I don't want to appear conceited but at the same time I am interesting and there is no use not admitting it."

"Well, do you admit it?" asked the Spotted Salamander.

"I do," said the Tiger Salamander.

"Well," said the Spotted Salamander once more, "so far, so good.

"What comes next?"

"What do you mean by 'What comes next?'" asked the Tiger Salamander.

"I am merely taking a polite interest in what you are saying," said the Spotted Salamander.

"I wanted to know what you are going to say next."

"I was going to tell you just why I am so interesting," said the Tiger Salamander.

"Go ahead," said the Spotted Salamander. "I'm listening politely.

"It's just as well to be so frank about things.

"If some others only admitted they were interesting, or thought they were, and told you their reasons why, it would be much better than to have them pretend and pretend and hope you'll think so and not be a bit honest about it.

"Go ahead."

"I came from Mexico, in the first place. My family, however, move around to various parts of the country sometimes.

"I have red, squashy gills, a tail like an eel when I live in the water, and I have several points or characteristics about me like a fish, or at least like a water animal.

"But if I should be taken from the water or if my home should go dry in the hot summer months I live quite nicely and contentedly on the land.

"Only when I am on the land I have no fin-like points to my tail like my friend, the fish, and my precious gills dry right up.

"Instead of breathing in the water with these gills I breathe on the land, and I breathe in the air with something they call a lung, or maybe it is two lungs.

"Yes, lungs is correct, or are correct, I'm not sure of the way to speak about them.

"You'll forgive me if I have a little trouble, and show that I have, in my speech.

"I'm interesting but I could know more.

"Aren't my ways interesting, though? Don't you think I had the right to admit what I did?"

"Indeed your story is very interesting," said the Spotted Salamander.

"I listened to you first out of politeness, but when you told me such wonderful things about yourself I couldn't help listening and enjoying myself.

"It was so amazing and marvelous a story."

"And all perfectly true," said the Tiger Salamander.

"Yes, that's the best part of it," agreed the Spotted Salamander.

GAS BUGGIES—Between the Devil and the Deep Blue Sea.

The KITCHEN CABINET

(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

Puddings, my friend, do a mission fulfill,
They add to the dinner and also the bill,
They cause men to wish, with what ardor they may,
That the meal which foretells them came three times a day.

FOR DESSERT.

Desserts are an important feature in every dinner, in most families. For those who enjoy and never prepare them, it will be hard to understand the amount of time it takes to prepare even simple desserts.

Banana Lemon Whip.—Boil together two cupfuls of sugar, two cupfuls of water and the grated yellow rind of a lemon; when it hairs add one-half package of gelatin which has been softened in cold water. Stir until dissolved, then add the sifted pulp of four ripe bananas mixed with the juice of two lemons. Pour all into a large bowl to cool, and when the edges begin to harden beat the mixture with a large-sized egg beater, continuing to beat until the whole is creamy, then it may be poured into a mold and chilled.

Baked Indian Pudding.—Take three-fourths of a cupful of cornmeal, scald with a cupful of boiling water and stir into a quart of scalding milk; cook until boiling, add one-half cupful of brown sugar, one cupful of raisins, a little salt, two well-beaten eggs and a cupful of chopped suet, a teaspoonful of grated nutmeg, three tablespoonfuls of molasses and more sugar if needed. Add another quart of milk and pour into a deep pudding dish and dredge the top with flour. Stir during the first of the baking until the mixture is well-blended. Bake for half a day. Serve with or without sauce.

Lemon Raisin Pie.—Take one cupful of large raisins, add one cupful of sugar, one large lemon, juice and grated rind, a tablespoonful of flour, one cupful of water, one tablespoonful of butter. Bake with two crusts.

Filled Sponge Cake.—Scoop the center from a deep sponge cake and fill with mashed and sweetened fruit, either peaches, bananas or strawberries—any fruit in season. Cover with sweetened whipped cream and serve at once.

PRINCE GALATZINE

MARY AGNES HAMILTON

EDWARD W. BLATCHFORD

HANFORD MACNIDER

The fifth marital romance of Aimee Crocker Gouraud is threatened because her latest husband, Prince Alexander Galatzine, plans to enter the movies despite her objections. Mary Agnes Hamilton, London editor, calls Ramsay MacDonald the "man of tomorrow." E. W. Blatchford, Chicago, who retired from business to do war work, has returned after seven years in the Near East with an appeal for the children of the Levant. Hanford MacNider, former head of the American Legion, has been appointed Assistant Secretary of War.

Nailed in His Tracks

It's seldom a football fan sees the perfect tackle, when the runner is downed by a grip well below his waist. "Bud" McKee, quarterback on the Santa Clara, Cal., football team, tried to skirt the end. But Hassler, speedy backfield player, sailed through the air and bowled him over.

Voters Satisfied With Humphrey

Wawarsing Republicans Made Wise Choice in Nominating Dillon B. Humphrey, Active Business Man, for Supervisor.

In selecting Dillon B. Humphrey of Napanoch for renomination for supervisor, the Republicans of the town of Wawarsing chose a man who is not only qualified for the office but who has been actively identified with the town, where he has lived since he was five years old.

Mr. Humphrey received his education in the common schools of the town and later at Eastman's Business College at Poughkeepsie, which for many years was a favorite educational institution for Ulster county residents, before the establishment of business schools in Kingston.

Since 1883, Mr. Humphrey has been actively identified with the business interests of Wawarsing. In that year he entered into partnership with the late George Young in the manufacture of straw wrapping paper, under the name of Young & Humphrey. The partnership continued until Mr. Young's death when his son, Chester Young, took over his father's interests and the firm was known as Humphrey & Young. When Mr. Young was compelled to resign as supervisor last fall on account of his duties as treasurer of the Dairymen's League of the State of New York, the town board of Wawarsing promptly selected Mr. Humphrey as his successor, considering him the most capable and best fitted of anyone in the town to carry on the important work which is intrusted to a supervisor. He has demonstrated his ability to conduct town and county affairs in a way to bring commendation to himself and to the town, and in every way he has justified the implicit confidence reposed in him.

Mr. Humphrey's family has been closely associated with Ulster county for many years. His father, Justus Humphrey, was born in Troy and married a member of the well known Hardenburgh family. For a time he was a manufacturer of agricultural implements in Chicago but returned to Ulster county in 1862, going in partnership with A. S. Schoonmaker in the paper manufacturing business at Mill Hook, in the town of Rochester and afterward at Napanoch. He was the first high priest of Wawarsing Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, and prominent in the Reformed Church of Napanoch. Dillon B. Humphrey married Miss Margaret L. Russell, a daughter of the late John B. Russell, who was a prominent manufacturer of Napanoch.

150 YEARS AGO

The Origin of the U. S. A.

By Jonathan A. Rawson, Jr.

PORTLAND PAYS THE PRICE.

Yesterday's story in this series of chronicles of 150 years ago closed with Captain Mowett of the British Navy with four armed ships before Portland, Maine, then known as Falmouth, threatening to bombard and burn the town. When the Falmouth people protested against the threatened outrage, on October 17 (1775), Mowett assured them that they would be safe until 8 o'clock on the morning of the 18th if they immediately delivered eight stands of small arms, and that if they then handed over practically all their cannon, firearms and ammunition, they would then be safe until he had consulted with his admiral at Boston as to his future course with them.

To gain time for deliberation, the town at once sent Mowett the eight stands of small arms. Then at daylight on the 18th they met in town meeting, refused to accept Mowett's terms and sent a committee to his ship to tell him so. Allowing this committee thirty minutes to get away, but giving them no opportunity to warn the town, he opened fire. He had a splendid target, for the town was on a hillside sloping down to the shore, within easy range of his ships.

The people took refuge in the woods and surprisingly few injuries were reported. But three-quarters of all the houses, every store and warehouse, the church, the court house and fourteen vessels on the waterfront were completely destroyed.

"Death and destruction mark the footsteps of the enemy. Fight or be slaves is the American motto," said General Nathanael Greene, the Rhode Island Quaker, when he heard about Falmouth. Washington called it a new "exertion of despotic barbarity."

Heaven has its troubles as well as earth, only Heaven does not worry about them so much as we do. This fact was revealed by Betty, who was getting into bed when mamma came to kiss her good-night. "And did you ask God to forgive you?" she asked, having in mind the little temper which Betty had shown during the evening. "Oh, yes, mamma," came the reply, "and God said it was all right. He had many little girls worser than me."—San Francisco Argonaut.

PENNSYLVANIA WILDS.

The body of Pilot Charles H. Ames, the lost air mail flier, was found, still seated in his smashed plane, only after nine days of search in the neighborhood of Bellefonte, Pa., near which point he was last seen flying. It is thought that, confused by fog, he ran into the Nittany Mountain range and crashed to death in the remote and dense brush. This reasonable supposition suggests that it would be wise for an aviator in a fog to keep going up, provided he knows which is up and which is down, and one would think he could know at least that much. Until a fog lifts mountain heights are as dangerous to aircraft as icebergs to ocean liners

One interesting fact brought to attention by the length of the search for Pilot Ames is that Pennsylvania, though a populous, rich and highly developed state, has mountain forests in almost if not quite their primeval condition, great pathless tracts of dense growth with the slush of generations. This explains why portions of the state abound in game, even big game, which half a century of developing conservation and strict game law enforcement have given a beter chance to increase The figures for the annual "kill" during Pennsylvania's hunting season are amazing. In 1923, for example, according to the official record, Pennsylvania's sportsmen bagged 512 bears, 6,200 buck deer (the killing of does is forbidden), 6,000 wild turkeys, 750,000 ruffed grouse, more than a million squirrels and nearly four million rabbits. It was in the remote and safer haunts of the bear, deer and wild turkeys that hapless Pilot Ames plunged to his death.

"THE FOLLY OF DIRIGIBLES."

Criticism of the Government's continuing and costly experiments in the Zeppelin type of airship was inevitable after the loss of the Shenandoah, following so many other disasters What is of topical interest now is that such criticism continues. In addition to many another argument as to the inadvisability of a fruitless and costly pursuit of an aerial will-o'the-wisp comes a convincing discussion of the "folly of dirigibles" by Lieutenant Commander J. M. Kenworthy, a distinguished British naval officer, reprinted in this country from the London Nation and Athenaeum. Commander Kenworthy addresses his argument to his own experimenting government and onlooking public, but it should be of equal interest to the American government and people.

Commander Kenworthy points out not only the great cost of building, equipment and upkeep, the extreme vulnerability of the Zeppelin type in war, the tragedy of continuing disasters, but the futility of an experiment never destined to succeed in braving the hostile elements. Commenting on the loss of the Shenandoah, he declares that "the disaster was one inherent to airships themselves, however great the improvement made in them, and however skilled the navigators and crew." He warns the advocates of a super-Zeppelin, three times as big as the Shenandoah, that "the larger airships become the more vulnerable they are, not only to opposing heavier than air craft in war, but to the elements." Both his and other expert testimony tend to show that, to say nothing of the cost in life and treasure, the Zeppelin gives no real promise of useful service.

The news comes that at Waterloo, Wis., motor traffic is operated on a new application of the honor system. On the outskirts of that municipality the motorist finds the sign, "Welcome," conspicuously displayed and underneath the words "Remember the Golden Rule." Results are not reported, but perhaps a good deal depends on the percentage of motorists who are not quite sure just what the Golden rule is.

After making trial of prohibition, the Soviet government has now made announcement that it will not only renounce its monopoly of the manufacture and sale of liquors but that it will permit individuals to make and sell liquor to any extent that they please. Russia is a land of extremes: from the Czar to the Soviet—from prohibition to the open sale of liquor on the streets.

New Yorkers contend that their city's reputation in the "hinterland" is due to "main street" pouring into Broadway from 48 states, "avid for thrills" and ready for a "fling" that might be dreamed of but would never be risked at home.

TROUBLE FROM WITHIN.

The king's physician, Lord Dawson, made a very interesting observation to the visiting physicians from North America. He stated that the ailments that attacked man from without were growing fewer, but the ones from within were increasing in number

The ailments that attacked vigorously from without left us alone after recovery, whereas the ones from within apeared to be always with us, troubling us little when we were "fit," but damaging us when we were unfit

Unfortunately all the health departments in the world could do but little for these internal foes. Against typhoid, measles, diphtheria and so forth, public health departments took hold of the situation and saved us from ourselves, whereas the infections from the teeth, gall bladder, tonsils, nose, and intestine damaged us just in proportion to the condition of our bodies to withstand them.

I know that it can be pointed out frequently that two men can be taken down with flu at the same time, and the weaker one put up the better fight This simply means insofar as his body and flu is concerned, that he reacted more safely to it

However, the real test of your fitness is your everyday health, your everyday ability to enter into your work, into recreation, into the enjoyment of food and rest And finally your ability to ward off the troubles from teeth, tonsils, foods, sudden changes in the atmosphere As Lord Dawson points out, no one can help you on this matter, no public health official, no instructor You are alone responsible for keeping your body in its best possible condition to meet these inward foes.

And as for the foes from without, it is ridiculous to say that your physical condition gives you no protection. The reason our strong young men died of the flu was because they remained on their feet too long, and this effort along with the fight the heart was putting up with the invader, was too much for the heart. That's the whole story very often

To quote Gladstone again "All time and money spent in training the body pays a larger rate of interest than any other investment."

W. C. T. U. Notes.

On Thursday afternoon, October 15, the W. C. T. U. of Kingston met at half past two o'clock in the parlors of the St. James M. E. Church The devotional meeting was in charge of Mrs. Keefe. A hymn was sung. Then verses read from the Scriptures teaching of the great power there is for those who have faith in God.

Instructive thoughts were then expressed by the leader, followed by a hymn and prayer, The business meeting was called to order by the president, followed by reading of the minutes of the September meeting. The treasurer's report was given and accepted. The meeting adjourned to November 19 at half-past two at the St. James Church parlors.

Tragedy of Razor Blades

Those who are puzzled to know what to do with used safety razor blades may find a hint in the following, says the London Mail. A young and pretty girl approached Battersea bridge. She held something tightly in her left hand. When she reached the middle of the bridge she stopped and looked around.

Only one man was anywhere near, and he, apparently, was not paying any attention to her doings. In a flash she raised her hand and flung something into the river below. It glittered and shone as it fell, and the man, gazing over the bridge in curiosity, saw that it was a small glass phial of the sort in which powdered bath salts are sold, twelve in a box. His curiosity overcame him, and he overtook the girl. "Do tell me what you threw into the river," he begged. "My husband's razor blades," was the astonishing answer.

HOW

SETTLEMENT HAS WIPED OUT THE "OPEN RANGE."—J. D. Suggs died at Chickasha, Okla., recently, and his death at the age of seventy-four marked the passing of one of the last of the plains "cattle kings." Suggs went to Texas as a boy some sixty-two years ago; walked all the way from Missouri, and reached the Lone Star state without funds, and willing to work at any job. He died a multimillionaire, but he lived to see the passing of conditions that made his wealth; at least a vast change in the methods by which he shaped his fortune.

His life story is a tale of the great ranches and vast open range. There are big ranches still in Texas, and a few in Oklahoma, but settlement encroaches, the open range is gone and the tendency is to divide the vast holdings, as agriculture intrudes more and more on the grazing area. Now there are fences where once was all unbroken prairie. Farms are found where cattle once roved a wilderness. Towns, cities, law and modern transportation methods all have worked to change the Southwest that was when the dynasty of the cattle kings was established.

A greater cattle country may follow in the land their herdsmen rode, for the demand for beef grows, and better breeds have followed where the longhorns strayed in other days. But the cowboys did men's work, in a wild country, and have their place with all the pioneers who helped to spread America across a continent.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

How Barrie's Character "Wendy" Came by Name

The Edinburgh Scotsman, in an obituary article on Mrs. W. E. Henley, the poet's widow, reveals for the first time the origin of a famous character of Sir James Barrie's.

"Mrs. Henley claimed that her daughter Margaret was the original of 'Wendy' Barrie, who was a regular visitor to their house, was very friendly with the little girl, who called him 'Uncle James Matthew.' One day Barrie said to her, 'Uncle James Matthew is a long name for me. Try to get something shorter.' After pondering a little the child said, 'I'll call you friend, or friendy-wendy,' and the name was afterward shortened into 'Wendy,' and transferred to the child."

How High Is a Fog?

The fogs which at this time of the year are apt to afflict London and other great cities are in their essentials merely cumulus clouds resting upon the ground, or near it, says Answers.

It is soot and other impurities they hold in solution that cause them to be so unpleasant. A sea fog is the same thing, minus the impurities. Being composed of particles of watery vapor, it is clean, and though dangerous to shipping, it is not particularly so to breathe.

Low-lying city fogs are usually shallow, though some have been found by aeronauts to extend upward to a height of 2,500 feet.

How Colors Are Formed

The different colors are caused by the differences in the length of light waves. We see the longer waves as red; those a little shorter as orange, etc. The shortest light waves visible appear to our eye as violet. A red object is one which absorbs all the light waves except the red ones; they are reflected back to our eye and produce the color called red. An orange-colored object is one which absorbs all the light waves except the orange ones, and so on. White consists of light waves of all lengths—of all the wave lengths mixed together. A white object is one which reflects all the light waves.—Pathfinder Magazine.

How "Bat" Got in Brickbat

The word "bat" used to mean a piece, lump, mass or wad. It is still so used in ceramics, the art of pottery; for instance, a bat of clay. A brickbat is a fragment of a brick, especially a fragment having one whole end. The term is probably most often used in speaking of pieces of brick when used as missiles to show appreciation of a public speaker.—Exchange.

How to Climb Stairs

Much energy is wasted in climbing stairs. If you bend from the waist, thus cramping your chest so you cannot breathe freely or if you put the entire strain on the back, as most people do, you are wasting energy. The right way to go upstairs is to stand perfectly erect, throwing out the chest. Do not hold on to the banisters. Lift the feet instead of dragging them and bend the knees—in fact, let the knees do all the work.

How Hot Is the Sun?

The heat of the sun is not known definitely. Some scientists estimate the heat at the sun's surface to be ten or fifteen thousand degrees Fahrenheit. When it is known that the boiling point of water is 212 degrees, such intense heat cannot be conceived. How much hotter it is inside the sun no one can exactly determine.

Wonderful Opal

One of the finest opals of modern times belonged to Empress Josephine, and was known as the "Burning of Troy," from the innumerable flames which appeared to be blazing within its depths.

Denning's Gain With Hamilton

Popular Supervisor of Mountain Town Has Accomplished Much for His Constituents in Four Years In County Legislature.

Martin Hamilton's record as supervisor of the town of Denning commends itself to every thoughtful voter of that town, and his renomination by the Republicans should be the reward of hard work that has been honestly, conscientiously and efficiently performed.

Denning's population know what hard work means. The town was not created by nature in such form as to make living as easy matter, but its hard working sons and daughters from the beginning of the town have been fortunate in their fearlessness of work and their ability to overcome every obstacle. In the first rank of the hard workers is Supervisor Hamilton.

While nature furnished Denning with beautiful scenery on every hand, the steep mountains and numerous streams added to the burdens of the people, and for many years Denning has struggled with the problem of repairing and improving the town's roads and bridges.

How well Supervisor Hamilton has succeeded in convincing his associates in the county legislature of the justice of Denning's claims for county aid is shown by the amounts which Denning has been able to expend for roads and bridges out of the funds appropriated by the board of supervisors and direct levy.

For roads, Denning in 1922 had $2,000; in 1923, $5,000; in 1924, the highway moneys were tied up by litigation; in 1925, $11,000 was received.

For bridges in Denning, the county appropriated $1,000 in 1922, $1,000 in 1923 and $2,000 in 1924. In 1921, which was the last year when Denning had a Democratic supervisor, the town received $500 for bridges from the county.

Supervisor Hamilton plays no favorites. He is working hard for the interests of his town all the time and his constituents know it. His re-election by a handsome majority will show how well they appreciate his work.

Program at D.A.R. Anniversary

In addition to the able and pertinent address delivered by Judge A. T. Clearwater on "The Constitution," at Wiltwyck Chapter House on Friday afternoon, Chapter Day for the local organization and also a celebration of the thirty-fifth anniversary of the National Daughters of the American Revolution, a very pleasing program was given. The guests were met and made welcome by the regent, Mrs. T. D. Lewis and members of the social and musical committees. Following a recital of The Lord's Prayer by all present and the pledge of loyalty to our country, also the singing of one verse of our National Anthem, Mrs. Lewis welcomed those present to the celebration of Chapter Day and the national D. A. R anniversary. She said that of the ground in the thirteen original states of the Union, none was more worthy of patriotic celebration than Ulster county in New York state. Mrs. Lewis also announced that the chapter felt particularly honored in having as its guests for the day, some of its children; representatives from Hudson, Rhinebeck, Saugerties chapters also from the Poughkeepsie Chapter.

The first number on the program was a piano solo by Mrs. Augustus H Van Buren—not only a musical but a patriotic member of Wiltwyck Chapter—who was obliged to respond to the continued applause with an encore number.

Mrs. Lewis then introduced Mrs. Wilbur of Poughkeepsie, who is now the candidate for the state regency, and Mrs. Wilbur gave those present a few cordial and appreciative words of greeting and good cheer. She was followed by Mrs Harp, regent the Poughkeepsie Chapter who brought a message of greeting and good wishes from that chapter.

Next filial, warm-from-the-heart and congratulatory messages were received from the "children;" Mrs. Charles B. Benson of Hendrick Hudson Chapter; Miss Russell for Mrs. Lamb of the Saugerties Chapter; and Mrs. Theodore de la Porte of the Chancellor Livingston Chapter of Rhinebeck.

At this point the program was very pleasantly varied by two sweetly sung vocal solos by Mrs. Allan Hanstein—nee Miss Margaret Angle, accompanied by Mrs. Ralph Glendenning at the piano. Mrs. Hanstein sang, "Songs my Mother Taught Me," by Dvorak and "All for you," by Martin.

Judge Clearwater's address followed.

Mrs. Lewis, then in a few well-chosen words told of the founding of Wiltwyck Chapter by Mary Isabella Forsyth and of its subsequent valuable history, making mention of the fact that Miss Forsyth while regent of the chapter wrote a hymn, "Unto Thee, O the God of our Fathers." This hymn was then admirably sung by Miss Edith Holmes accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Van Buren, after which an enthusiastic vote of thanks and appreciation was given Judge Clearwater for his thought-provoking address.

The regent said that while there were only three or four of the charter members of the chapter living, it had been their hope and expectation to be present with their fellow-members, up to the very day of the celebration. It was with heartfelt disappointment that the regent had instead received letters from two such members. Mrs. Philip Elting then read a letter of profound regret at not being able to celebrate Chapter Day with Wiltwyck Chapter, and extending every good wish for the organization from Mrs. A. V. V. Kenyon. A similar letter, with the added regret because as a sister of the first regent she had always stood so close to the chapter, was read by the regent from Miss Katherine B. Forsyth.

Mrs. Hanstien then sang another group of songs, "The Enchanted Glades" by Barker and "Ship O' Dreams," by Riker, calling forth the heartiest applause and congratulations.

Before closing the program with the singing of America by the assemblage, Mrs. Lewis expressed her appreciation of the excellent services rendered by the social and music committees in preparing and presenting such an enjoyable and profitable program.

The guests then adjourned to the dining room, to enjoy a cup of coffee and delicious home-made cake, Mrs. A. T. Clearwater and Mrs. William Lawton presiding at the prettily appointed table.

6,372,608 Farms In United States

New York State Credited With 188,768 According to 1925 Federal Farm Census—Texas Leads, With North Carolina Second.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17.—The accompanying statement gives the number of farms in the United States, as returned in the 1925 farm census, by states, with comparative data for 1920. The 1925 figures are preliminary and subject to correction.

A "farm" for census purposes is all the land which is directly farmed by one person, either by his own labor alone or with the assistance of members of his household or hired employes. When a landowner has one or more tenants, renters, croppers, or managers, the land operated by each is considered a "farm."

The net decrease of 75,735, or 1.2 per cent in the United States total is the result of considerable decreases in some sections in the country partly offset by increases in other section. Among the reasons given for decrease in the number of farms were the following: The ravages of the boll weevil in some of the cotton states, the migration of negro farm workers, a succession of dry seasons in parts of the Northwest; the consolidation of farms, and a general recession from the wartime expansion in agriculture, which still persisted in 1920. Increases have resulted from the opening up of new lands in parts of the West, from the subdivision of ranches and large farms for more intensive operation, and from the development of orchards, truck and poultry farms. The establishment of small truck and poultry farms, especially near the cities, accounts for most of the increase shown for New England and some other parts of the East.

Farms by states and divisions are as follows:

Nutty Natural History

By HUGH HUTTON.

THE ABYSSINIAN GWUMPIT.

This animal is held sacred by the natives, and, as a result, its appetite is ruined by eating too much candy. Almost daily it is pursued through the forest by the giant jiggerwurt, and only evades capture by turning itself inside out to make the jiggerwurt think it is coming toward it when all the time it is going away. Consequently, the jiggerwurt has never caught one yet. This picture caught the animal in repose, after a meal of jelly beans.

You must find a rather long simple peanut for the head, but the rest is easy, the body being a Brazil nut, the horns cloves, ears popcorn, and the legs and tail toothpicks, with chewing gum sticking everything together.

Papered Kitchen With Investments

Peacock Green Certificates With Yellow Seals Demanded by Wise Investor Who Found Use for Stock After Company Went Bankrupt.

Someone is authority for the statement that a fool is born every minute. Now hold that happy thought for just a second or two, writes Harry Daniel in The Thrift Magazine. There are 60 minutes in every hour, 24 hours in every day, or a gross national production of 525,600 fools a year. It is from this source that the billion dollar a year loss in soap-bubble investments comes in this country, so that the actual cost of being a fool and remaining so consistently through life amounts to just about $1,902.60.

In the selection of investments it is surprising how careless many persons are at times. For example, all stock is divided by financial experts into four general groups or classifications, as follows: Red, blue, green and yellow. There is, of course, some pink stock being offered to the public, but this is the exception that proves the rule.

Yet how few of us ever stop long enough to look into this important side of the investment problem. All we want to know is how much the dividend or profits are going to be. When we are told that a particular stock will double in value every morning before breakfast or that if all the dividends of such and such a company were placed end to end they would reach all the way from here to the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kans., we are satisfied.

A shrewd Ohio investor we recently heard of had the right idea. He insisted that every share of stock he purchased must be peacock green with a yellow seal on it.

When the president of the corporation was indicted and three of the directors drank carbolic acid and blew out their brains with what many believed was suicidal intent, some doubting Thomases thought this investor's stock would be entirely worthless. But such was not the case, for, having selected only stock of one color, he was able to use every single share of it in repapering the old summer kitchen.

Manifestly, the careful security buyer should not be influenced too much by the great scenic beauty of his stock. He should find out something about the assets of the company. Take, for illustration, in the case of a ten million dollar corporation, he should try to find out exactly how many chairs, umbrella racks and cuspidors constitute its assets.

A friend of ours who has almost completed his quota of $1,902.60, bought some oil stock not long ago on the strength of a letter sent out by the company that its assets consisted of six good producing wells. At the inquest it was discovered that the assets referred to were six producing ink wells.

Truly the poet hath cried in his joy, "Investing the name is opportunity." To illustrate the truth of this beautiful sentiment an opportunity only a short while since was offered wide-awake investors to buy stock in a company being formed to convert the sun's rays into fur-lined bath tubs or some such great public necessity. But, before they had time to utter a single bath tub, several of the officers of the company received a flattering offer to come right down to Atlanta, Ga., and be the guests of good, old, big-hearted Uncle Sam for ten years.

Reports in financial circles state that there is now considerable activity in amphibious locomotion. An amphibious locomotive is one that spends most of its time under water. A building lot always should be taught from earliest infancy never to grow too fond of the water. There are many choice building sites now being offered to the public that could swim the English Channel.

This reminds us of the story we heard the other day about a Missouri investor who ordered a small fruit farm by mail from Chicago. He paid $100 cash down. When he went to claim his property in a distant state, a strange thing occurred. There wasn't any farm there. In filling his order for a farm, the promoters had just naturally forgotten to put in any land. Well, boys will be boys.

If anybody should ever try to sell you an investment that he says will make you rich not later than one month from next Thursday, don't pay any attention to him unless your summer kitchen is badly in need of repapering.

Urge Leniency For Tourists

Leniency and Consideration for Motor Tourist Asked by A. A. A. During Experimental Period of Traffic Regulation.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17.—Because of the fact that during the 1925 touring season thousands of motorists have been the victims of traffic regulations with which they were not familiar, the American Automobile Association broadcast an appeal today urging civic authorities everywhere to treat "foreign motorists" with consideration during the present period of intensive experiment in traffic regulation.

"There is all the difference in the world between recklessness on the highways and technical violations by motorists of traffic rules with which they are unfamiliar, inasmuch as in ninety per cent of the latter type of offense the motor tourist is not to blame," Thomas P. Henry, president of the A. A. A. declared.

The president of the national motoring body called attention to hundreds of communications reaching A. A. A headquarters which prove that in addition to being the favorite victim of roadside courts and speed traps the foreign motorist is unduly penalized for running foul of novel regulations that he encounters on all sides.

The A. A. A., officials of the organization state, is ready to support city and town authorities in developing better systems of traffic control but at the same time will insist that the motorist be treated fairly and given an opporunity to conform with the new plans.

Following his transcontinental motor run during which he made an exhaustive survey of conditions, Mr. Henry made the statement that the variations in traffic regulation throughout the country are such as to make a violator of every motor tourist somewhere along the line.

"The motor tourist," he said, "is expected to understand and comply with regulations that prove a veritable puzzle even to the native driver." He continued:

"Until America reaches an accord on traffic regulation and decides on something that can be applied universally throughout the country, the visiting motorist should not be held strictly accountable for technical violations. He is not to blame. If he is to be punished for minor offenses in strange cities where experiments are under way, it merely means another addition to the ranks of those who hold laws in contempt because of the impossibility of compliance.

"To hold the motor tourist to blame for his misunderstanding of a traffic regulation is to defeat the purpose of progress in regulation," Mr. Henry explains. "If a tourist cannot grasp the idea it is too complicated. Traffic regulations, to be successful, must be such that the average driver can grasp them without difficulty.

"Too many cities have come to regard their regulations as simple just because their own drivers no longer make technical mistakes. This is a dangerous inference. The chances are the local drivers have come to adapt themselves because they have repeated their acts hundreds of times.

"Habit alone cannot be relied upon in traffic regulation. These drivers who never make an error in their own home town are now touring, and some of them are not finding the going smooth. They find they have been forced to form certain localized habits and that they have lost the knack of adapting themselves to new environments.

"The situation is complicated further when the motor tourist finds regulations literally changing over night. The A. A. A. concedes that experiment has its advantages but to hold the motor tourist responsible for every little infringement of every new experimental regulation is manifestly unfair and out of line with American ideas as to how matters should be conducted. Yet this is the situation throughout the country today.

"The entire nation is awakening to a new traffic consciousness. Antiquated ideas in regulation are giving way to more systematic and logical methods. The ultimate and obvious aim is simplicity, but of necessity there is a certain amount of over-regulation and complication. This is to be expected, but there is no reason why the party who should benefit by any improvement in regulations should also be the victim of misunderstandings."

STRANGERS INSIST ON TREATING EYES

In view of the many "cure-alls" offered by traveling fakers in Ulster county periodically for a number of years, the following letter and comment which appeared in a recent issue of the Rural New Yorker will be interesting:

Do you know of a Davis Institute in New York city? Yesterday two men called here, one of them purporting to be Dr. C. C. Davis (Prof.), and he said that the name of the other man was Brown—Dr. Brown. He, Davis, was treating eyes and he spoke of two kinds of cataract, one of which is transparent, and that by use of a liquid, he could remove such, and in 10 minutes' time. He was quite persistent that a trial be made of one of my eyes, as he said there was a cataract covering it.

New York. W. W. S.

Further reports from Saratoga Springs and vicinity are to the effect that these alleged doctors are trying to frighten individuals into believing that their eyes are affected by a cataract which can be cured by a few drops of a wonderful remedy, the price of the treatment being $120. We do not know Dr. Davis or Dr. Brown, but the story sounds like a "bunco game." We have exposed similar schemes of fraudulent doctors in past years. These swindlers seem to go in cycles, and bob up every few years. Residents of other sections should be on their guard, should this pair of all-eyed professional men continue their activities.

McElhone Works For Shawangunk

Faithful and Efficient Service Appreciated by Voters Who Know What Their Supervisor Has Done for the Town.

William W. McElhon needs no introduction to the voters of the town of Shawangunk who know that his renomination by the Republicans for the office of supervisor was the reward of faithful and efficient service which he has rendered while in office.

Taxpayers of the town of Shawangunk need only look at their last tax bills and compare them with the tax bills of other years in order to realize the value of Supervisor McElhone's services to them. The money which he has saved to them on taxes is money which each and every taxpayer has been able to use to good advantage elsewhere. The amount which has been saved to them has been dependent only on what they owned.

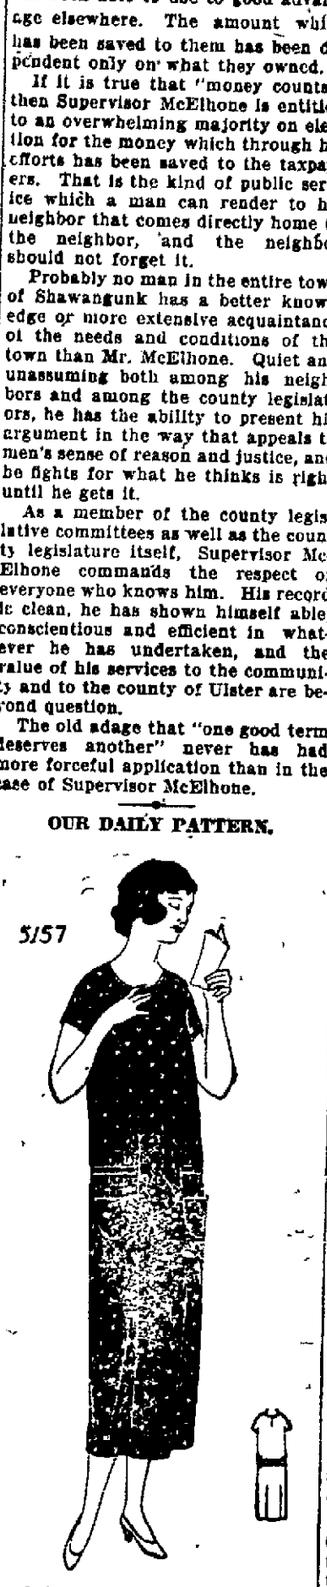

If it is true that "money counts," then Supervisor McElhone is entitled to an overwhelming majority on election for the money which through his efforts has been saved to the taxpayers. That is the kind of public service which a man can render to his neighbor that comes directly home to the neighbor, and the neighbor should not forget it.

Probably no man in the entire town of Shawangunk has a better knowledge or more extensive acquaintance of the needs and conditions of the town than Mr. McElhone. Quiet and unassuming both among his neighbors and among the county legislators, he has the ability to present his argument in the way that appeals to men's sense of reason and justice, and he fights for what he thinks is right until he gets it.

As a member of the county legislative committees as well as the county legislature itself, Supervisor McElhone commands the respect of everyone who knows him. His record is clean, he has shown himself able, conscientious and efficient in whatever he has undertaken, and the value of his services to the community and to the county of Ulster are beyond question.

The old adage that "one good term deserves another" never has had more forceful application than in the case of Supervisor McElhone.

Make Sure!

All previous wills are revoked by the drawing up of a new will, but so much trouble arises through error or carelessness that it is always best to make sure of the matter by burning the document to be revoked. Remember that, if the new will is lost or destroyed, an older will that is not lost or destroyed might become valid. It is impossible to be too careful.

Jewel and Metal Tones Rival Black In the Estimation of the Smart Woman.

The elegance of black velvet for evening is suffering an eclipse, because of the favoritism shown for rich velvets in jewel colorings. There is, for instance, a model in sapphire blue, the draped front ending in a bow at the back—a graceful acknowledgment to the bustle. A silver lace—very dull, of course—underskirt, peeps beneath the ample width of the skirt, and a necklace effect of brilliants is a part of the gown itself, and does away with any embarrassment one might feel at now possessing a diamond necklace.

There are gowns of garnet and ruby velvet, and lovely topaz ones, to say nothing of emeralds—although the jewels chosen by the lover of green is more often aquamarine or jade. There are lapis lazuli gowns, intensely blue and very flattering to women with white hair, and there are bois de rose velvets, as well as more brilliant rose shades. There is even gray—a color rather out of the usual for evening, but logically enough introduced in a season so largely given over to metallic effects, and last, but by no means least, are the amethyst shades—though royal purples are really smarter just now.

This brings to mind, that several of the loveliest purples are either combined with jade or cerise. Heretofore, when a woman felt the need of a dark evening gown, she invariably chose black, now, however, any of the colors mentioned—even dark greens on the sage order and blond or copper shades, may be selected.

DOMESTIC BRICK REGAINS HOME MARKET.

The producers of burned clay products have regained during the past few years a large part of the market lost in the war years, according to the year book of the United States Department of Commerce which is now being distributed.

The value of burned clay products, which includes brick, architectural terra cotta and similar products, as reported in the last census of the department has increased to $333,000,000, a gain of 72 per cent in two years. It is also interesting to note that the number of workers in the industry increased from 68,759 to 102,723 during the same period and the wages from $73,725,985 to almost $124,000,000. Although these figures represent an average increase in the amounts paid to individual workers the wholesale price was, on the whole, lower, dropping from $15 76 in 1921 to $14.46 in 1924

The importation of foreign brick during 1924, according to the same authority, decreased about 19 per cent in comparison with the previous year and it is probable that when statistics for the present year are compiled, a still larger decrease will be evident. Manufacturers of Hudson river common brick offer as an explanation that American bricklayers do not like the foreign made product and claim it is more difficult and therefore more expensive to lay.

Varicose Veins Reduced or Money Refunded Says Wm. F. Dedrick

Simple Home Treatment that is Giving Amazing Results.

The world progresses. Today ailments that took weeks to cure can now be ended in a few days. If you have varicose veins or bunches you can start today to bring them back to normal size, and if you are wise you will do so.

Just get an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil at any dispensing pharmacist and apply it night and morning to the enlarged veins. It is very powerful and penetrating, and only a little is required.

After a few days' treatment the veins will begin to grow smaller and by regular use will soon reduce to normal.

Moone's Emerald Oil is also a marvelous healing agent. One application for instance stops the itching of eczema, and a few applications causes the eruptions to dry up, scale off and completely disappear. It is equally as effective in barber's itch, salt rheum, redness and inflammatory skin trouble.

People who want to reduce varicose veins, or get rid of eczema, ulcers, or piles in a few days should not hesitate to get a bottle at once. It is so powerful that a small bottle lasts a long time. Any pharmacy can supply you. Wm. F. Dedrick's sells lots of it.

Repose, as a Fine Art, Found in Spanish Town

If proof be needed that Spain, geographically as well as historically, is a sort of bridge between Europe and Africa, the ancient Saracen town of Elche, near Alicante, supplies it.

It is an odd little town with its twisting, zigzagging streets, its medieval towers and buildings and its ravine where not a drop of water flows In every doorway a man is seated making soles for sandals. Indeed the entire town appears to be dedicated to the manufacture of sandals which you see everywhere in piles and bales, overflowing the shops.

In the center of the town is a tiny, green square, as neat and trim as a salon, beneath ancient, overarching trees. Nearby are two or three cafes, which serve as the club for the city notables; and the triple rows of wicker armchairs on the sidewalk are occupied by silent, grave men who neither drink nor talk. Here they remain, as motionless as statues, for hours at a time.

"I have never in my life seen so many people sitting down as there are in Spain," remarked an American woman who was in our party. "I should like to bring some of my fellow countrymen here to teach them the art of which they are abysmally ignorant—the art of repose."—Raymond Recouly in Le Figaro, Paris. (Translated for the Kansas City Star.)

Modern Ideals Make Cave Men Seem Tame

Another ideal of the flapper has been shattered. Her vision of the cave man is all wrong

He did not catch them young and treat them rough, nor did he a-wooing go with a big club and prove his devotion to his sweetie by dragging her around by her unbobbed tresses. A professor of Beloit college has been looking up the records of the gay Lotharios of sixty years back and cannot find a thing to show they were the tough bunch we had always supposed them to be.

The fact is they were a mollycoddle, nambypamby set of young fellows, who would have made a sorry showing with the present day maids. Instead of wielding clubs they found great thrill in stringing beads and begging the hands of their loved ones on their bended knees.

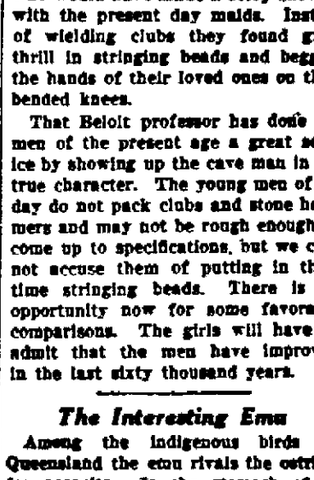

That Beloit professor has done the men of the present age a great service by showing up the cave man in his true character. The young men of today do not pack clubs and stone hammers and may not be rough enough to come up to specifications, but we cannot accuse them of putting in their time stringing beads. There is an opportunity now for some favorable comparisons. The girls will have to admit that the men have improved in the last sixty thousand years.

REPORT AVAILABLE ON COMMERCIAL FEEDS

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Geneva, N. Y., Oct. 17.—A report on the composition and cost of commercial feeding stuffs offered for sale to farmers of the state during 1924 is now available for distribution by the Experiment Station here. A total of 1,915 samples of feeds were analyzed by the station chemists, who also made a study of the relative cost of various sources of important feeding stuff ingredients, particularly protein. The information assembled in the course of the work has been summarized in Bulletin No. 530 prepared by A. W Clark, W. F. Walsh, M. F. Sweeney, and M. G. Moore, and now available free of charge to anyone interested in the matter of commercial feeds.

Situation Generally Favorable.

"The purpose of the present report," say the station chemists, "is to give the consumer information of a general nature regarding the different classes of feeds, together with the average composition, average selling price, and the cost per pound of protein and fat.

"Of the total number of samples analyzed, 24 were materially deficient in protein, 47 materially deficient in fat, and 21 contained excessive crude fiber. There were a few additional slight deficiencies, but allowing for these 84.6 per cent of the feeding stuffs analyzed by us met the guaranteed chemical analysis in every respect. This may be regarded as a very good showing, particularly when it is considered that in the case of eight per cent of the variations from the guarantee there was present sufficient protein and fat taken together to meet the guarantee of both of these important nutrients.

"General information is also given on the nature of the different classes of feeding stuffs, together with the average composition, average selling price, and the cost per pound of protein and fat from different sources The publication thus serves as a useful guide to the prospective buyer of commercial feeding stuffs in revealing the actual feeding value of numerous materials offered for sale in the state."

WINTERING GRAPES.

Danger of Injury is Lessened by Drainage.

Too much rainfall during late summer and early fall may prevent the newly formed grape buds from reaching maturity before freezing weather sets in, thus resulting in severe winter injury to the vineyard, say horticulturists at the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva. This has been found to be especially true where the vineyards are grown on poorly drained soils, and it is believed that much winter injury may be prevented by proper drainage, which by removing the surplus water allows the grape tissues to harden up before cold weather.

In many parts of New York the past season has been marked by rather frequent rains, and if this is followed by heavy rains during the next few weks there may be a tendency to aggravate winter injury, say the station specialists.

When cultivation of the vineyard is discontinued in July or August, the weeds should be allowed to grow without cutting, it is said, so as to let the weeds utilize as much of the soil moisture as they will. Green manure crops sown after the last cultivation aid in drying out the soil, provided they do not shade the ground too much. Rye, wheat, oats, barley and buckwheat make good especially good cover crops, as they shade the ground very little, while rape and cowhorn turnips are less desirable.

Some winter injury to grapes will nearly always follow low temperatures, but the extent of the injury may be materially lessened by following practices which tend to favor early maturity of the fruit buds so that the vines go into the winter in the best possible condition.

"Please keep the door closed to prevent swallows building inside the church," reads a notice posted on the church door in an English village.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 17.—Industrial and motor stocks pushed forward to higher prices today under the impetus of a fresh buying movement. General Motors and U. S. Steel led the advance, but they were only slightly more prominent in trading activity than Hudson Motors, Mack Trucks, White Motors, Continental, Chrysler, Dodge and Studebaker, practically all of which reached a new high price ground.

Speculative enthusiasm has been maintained at a high pitch by the remarkable performance of the market this week, when the volume of sales broke all records for the last 20 years.

Huge blocks of motor stocks and industrials, aggregating in some cases 15,000 shares, testified to the breadth of the market and the expanding speculative interest.

General Motors pushed up to 135½ for the day; White Motors rose 7 points to 102½; Yellow Cab was up 5 points to about 40; Mack Trucks up 5; Hudson up 2; Du Pont up 3; Fisher Body up 2.

United States Steel advanced buoyantly to the highest price of the movement, only about a point below the high for the year.

Sales in the first hour aggregated 748,000 shares.

Duso Season Opens Today

The Duso football league has its grand opening today. The K. H. S. eleven faces the Middletown aggregation at the Athletic Field as Newburgh Academy battles Port Jervis at Newburgh. Although the Middies have won both of their encounters and the locals have lost three games in a row, the K. H. S. students and coaches are far from pessimistic over today's outcome. The Middletown team is high strung over the crushing defeat it put over on the Highland Falls team last Saturday and is offering all sorts of threats. But "Vince," sport writer for the Port Jervis Gazette, sees nothing impressive in walloping such a light team as that which represented Highland Falls last Saturday. At any rate there will be plenty of fight shown at the Athletic Field. Last season at this same stage of the season the locals fought to a 0-0 tie with the Middies.

The Port Jervis-Newburgh game will be quite a tussle also. Newburgh lost its first real contest to Peekskill 13-0 and unless they have improved considerably the past week they will find the Red and White warriors who last week proved themselves as good as Stuyvesant High, a tough set of opponents.

The Poughkeepsie eleven plays a double header today. The first game with Red Hook High School and directly following this tilt they face the St. Mary's School of Hudson.

Corn Borer Cause Of Heavy Loss

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 17.—The European corn borer has caused great damage in the corn fields of Western New York this fall, the state department of farms and markets announced today. In some instances entire fields of corn were destroyed.

"The pest has now advanced from Lake Erie, covering the entire western end of the state, to a line extending north and south through Ithaca" the department said. "Indications point to the possibility of heavy infestation and losses occurring on many farms and over a much wider territory in western New York the coming season than has been true in the past."

Farmers were warned by the department to take steps immediately to protect next year's crop. Corn stalks should be cut within six inches of the ground and at once removed from the field, the department said.

New Notre Dame Team on Trial

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 17.—The moot question of whether the genius that is Knute Rockne can make a vest out of a button hole will come down to a definite decision before a record crowd at the Yankee Stadium this afternoon when a virgin new Notre Dame eleven will resume its annual series with the Army. It will be a strange list of names that Rockne will hand to the officials at the start of the game.

The famed Four Horsemen will ride no more. A 1924 guard will appear at full back. A substitute end of last year will captain the outfit. The remainder of the 1924 championship team has passed on.

But Rockne has remained. His seems to be the only human hand that can make something out of nothing and Notre Dame's undefeated record of last year has been preserved inviolate through three games played so far during the 1925 campaign.

In place of the Four Horsemen—Stuhldreher, Miller, Crowley and Leyden—he has stepped forward with the four foot men—Edwards, O'Boyle, Hearnden and Hanousek—an dthe way they have used their pedic extremities in the open field to date has more than justified the title.

They may lack the precision and absolute perfection that characterized last year's backfield but the debit is said to have been overcome by the fact that the 1925 Notre Dame line is believed to have an edge, on its immediate predecessor, which was good enough.

The middle western entry, therefore, ruled a slight favorite to beat the Army again and make its record for the series nine victories, two defeats and one tie. The Army is said to have its best team since the war, which the writer is pleased to doubt, but the fact that they think well of themselves up at the Point forecasts a great game.

It will be viewed by a great crowd, the greatest that has attended a sport event in New York, barring boxing. The stadium was an absolute sellout last night and the crowd will not be less than 70,000, rain or shone.

The probable line up:

Notre Dame.	Position.	Army.
Crowe, (C)	l.e.	Baxter, (C)
Boland	l.t.	Sprague
Morelli	l.g.	Schmidt
Maxwell	c.	Daly
Mayer	r.g.	Hammock
McMannon	r.t.	Saunders
Wallace	r.e.	Born
Edwards	g.b.	Yeomans
O'Boyle	l.h.b.	Buell
Hearnden	r.h.b	Trapnell
Hanousek	f.b.	Wilson

Frenzied Selling After Buying Boom

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 17.—After forging ahead aggressively to new high price levels in the short session of the stock market today, industrial and motor stocks were called upon to absorb an enormous amount of profit taking, and values melted with surprising suddenness.

General Motors was swept downward ten points to 127. U. S. Steel was pushed back from 128¼ to 124¾; White Motors, Studebaker, Yellow Cab, McCrey B and other aggressive leaders in the week's violent advance were unable to stand the shock of frenzied selling, and broke precipitously from one to five points.

Arms Conference To Follow Locarno

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Oct. 17.—Another arms conference aimed to accomplish what the original Washington conference left undone, was regarded here today as virtually a certainty, perhaps within the next year.

President Coolidge is ready to issue the invitations, just as soon as he is assured that the nations of Europe who will cooperate are willing to come in.

The signing of the Locarno security pact, under which France, Germany, and their neighbors agree to abolish war as among themselves, has in his opinion, removed the last great obstacle to the success of such a gathering.

The chief aims to be sought in this second Washington conference are expected to be:

1. Reduction of the world's standing armies.
2. Limitation of air craft armament.
3. Limitation of submarines, both as to size and number that each nation may possess.
4. Limitation of those classes of auxiliary naval ships, that the first Washington conference left untouched.

These are all problems which were debated by the original conference here three years ago, debated almost to the point of rupture, and then for one reason or another left to future determination.

The failure of the first conference to deal with standing armies submarines and aircraft was attributedly entirely to France's professed fears of another invasion by Germany. The impassioned speech of Foreign Minister Briand, characterizing Germany as "an armed, revengeful force," waiting to strike France in a war of revenge; sounded the death knell of attempts to limit armies. If, said M. Briand, France was made secure against attack—France would gladly come in. Now, it was pointed out by administration officials today, France has been secured against attack. Germany has agreed never to war against her neighbors, and Great Britain and Italy have agreed to aid France if she is unjustly attacked.

In President Coolidge's opinion this removes the last great objection France can have to joining with other nations for a general reduction of armament on land, on sea, and in the air.

Need More Tubes to Obtain Range

Must Use Radio or Audio Amplification and Reduce Losses in Circuit.

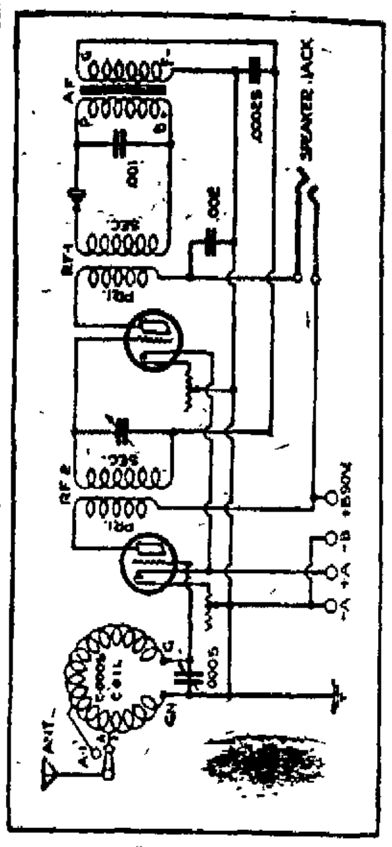

The one-tube reflex type of receiver has made many friends on account of its tremendous volume and range which is more than any other type of receiver using but a single tube.

When the time comes to increase the range or power of the set, the only thing to do is to add more tubes using either radio or audio amplification, and to reduce existing losses in the circuit wherever possible.

The development of the low-loss doughnut coil, a toroidal form of winding in which the wires are indented to reduce the distributed capacity and resistance losses to the lowest point yet found possible, offers one solution for improving the circuit. The use of this form of inductance in place of the usual variocoupler for tuning, together with the addition of a second tube, produces a receiver that has sufficient volume to operate a loud speaker on all nearby and many distant stations.

Added Efficiency of Coil.

The actual difference in measurement between a mediocre type of inductance and the low loss doughnut coil may be but ten or fifteen ohms, yet it is this added efficiency of the coil that really counts in this day, when good condensers are procurable and generally used.

The two-tube receiver here described makes an excellent compact outfit for either home use or to carry alone on trips for a portable receiver. The low-loss doughnut coil has a completely enclosed magnetic field so that no spraying effect of the lines of force are possible and the coil may be mounted in any position in the set. If you have a one-tube reflex receiver at the present time, or you wish to build a two-tube set that has excellent performance, this circuit will fit your needs.

Parts Needed for Set.

The parts you will need for the complete set are as follows:

1 Low-loss doughnut coupler coil.

2 Radio frequency reflex transformers. (Low loss doughnut coil transformers may be used here in the first radio stage with excellent results).

1 Low-ratio 3 to 1 audio frequency transformer.

2 Straightline frequency low-loss condensers, variable with .0005 mfd. maximum capacity.

1 Variable or fixed crystal detector.

2 Vacuum tube sockets.

2 Filament rheostats (25 ohms for the UV 201-A or C 301-A tubes).

1 Each of the following sizes of mica fixed condensers: .001 mfd., .002 mfd., and .00025 mfd.

1 Single-circuit telephone jack.

Binding posts, wire and screws will complete the list of material necessary.

The receiver can readily be assembled on a 6 by 14 inch panel, with a 6 by 13 inch baseboard.

"A" Battery Connections

The plates of a battery are called electrodes. In a dry cell the zinc electrode is the negative terminal and the binding post in the center, on top of the carbon electrode, is the positive terminal. It is important that the positive and negative "A" battery connections be correct. After the set is in operation it is always a good plan to reverse the "A" battery connections to see which arrangement produces the loudest signals.

Use Gloves in Winding Coils

Anyone who has wound special coils knows how hard it is to prevent the wire from becoming soiled by the hands. Besides, the perspiration on most people's hands is slightly acid, and if any appreciable amount soaks into the insulation the losses in the coil will be much greater than if the wire were kept clean and dry. Wind your coils with gloves on your hands. This may be a bit awkward, but the results will warrant the annoyance.

To Clean Satin Pumps

The most efficient way to clean satin pumps is to brush the satin off with a small piece of velvet. If this method is used, it will be found that the satin will not become rough and the life of the shoes will be greatly prolonged.

"Culloton Day" At Millbrook

It will be "Culloton Day" in Millbrook Sunday when Bud Culloton, former Colonial and at present a Pittsburgh Pirate, twirls for "Big Ed" Phelan's All Stars against the Millbrook aggregation.

Phelan is planning to make Bud the guest of honor at Millbrook and it is expected that a large number of local fans will attend to take part in the big reception. It is expected that the ball park will experience its largest crowd for many a day when the fans from this section turn out to watch the big league hurler.

The All Stars will be made up of a strong group of ball players. Besides Bud, Tommy McCarthy, who starts out with the Detroit Tigers in the spring and Elmer Steel, who played with the Pirates in the days of Fred Clarge will also be with Phelan's club. Jack Robins will be on the receiving end of Bud's pitching. Maury McDermott, who goes to the Toledo club of the American Association in the spring, will be posted at first. The outfield will be taken care of by Schwab, Phelan, Fred Dahn and Steele., Deegan and McCue will be posted in the infield.

It has been rumored that Manager Bedell will reinforce his Millbrook club with four Eastern Leaguers. Another unconfirmed report is that Garry Fortune or Andy Rush will twirl for the Millbrookers. The game is scheduled for 2:30 p. m.

Astonished Audience

A man who usually dictates his business letters into a dictaphone was recently asked to say a few words at a public meeting.

He had had no previous experience of facing an audience, but he consented to speak, thinking that, if he were to imagine he was merely addressing his remarks to an inanimate recording machine, he would find things go quite easily for him.

When he had been introduced by the chairman, he stood up, cleared his throat, and began:

"Ladies and gentlemen comma it is a very great underlined pleasure to me to be present here tonight dash although I am naturally somewhat nervous at addressing a public meeting for the first time semicolon but trust it will not be my last full stop."

Day of Glory Gone

The Cinque Ports was the old collective name for the five English channel ports—Sandwich, Dover, Hythe, Romney and Hastings. They were enfranchised by Edward the Confessor, and granted special privileges by William the Conqueror. Up to the reign of Henry VII their chief duty was to supply the country's naval contingent. In the time of Edward I they provided 57 fully equipped ships and often extended their powers by equipping piratical expeditions. Dating from the revolution of 1688, their privileges and powers waned.

Alloys Long Used

An alloy has been used with gold for many centuries. Gold in the raw state was known in the latter Stone age. It was probably the first metal known to man. So long ago as in the day of the cities of Cyzicus and Phocaea electrum, a natural alloy of gold and silver, was used in making coins.

Lazarus Shows Feature Films At State Armory

Harry Lazarus Takes Over State Armory to Produce Feature Movie Films—First Feature is Harold Lloyd in "The Freshman" on November 2.

Harry Lazarus, proprietor of the Auditorium Theater, has just completed arrangements to use the state armory on Broadway for the showing of feature movie pictures under the auspices of the local military unit. The first feature picture to be shown will be on November 2, when Harold Lloyd in "The Freshman" will be the attraction.

Other feature pictures coming shortly will be Charley Chaplin in "The Gold Rush;" Douglas Fairbanks in "Don Q, Son of Zoro;" and Mary Pickford in "Little Annie Rooney." These are all first run pictures.

Mr. Lazarus stated today that he would install two modern and up-to-date movie machines in the armory and that only the very best of the latest pictures would be shown.

The arrangements for using the state armory have been underway for several days and have finally been completed.

The seating capacity of the armory will undoubtedly be taxed to the utmost to care for the movie fans of the city who want to see the very highest class of movie pictures now being produced.

Aunt Harriet's Share in Her Grand "Party"

Aunt Harriet lived in a remote Kentucky village, and was locally famed for kindness of heart and good will toward her neighbors. For many months she had been saving her slender means "to give a grand party," she said.

At last the great event came. All Aunt Harriet's friends, dressed in their best, were present, and the evening was most enjoyable, the only drawback being the mysterious absence of the hostess.

Meeting her the next morning one of the youthful guests of the night before spoke rapturously of the party.

"I'm certainly glad you enjoyed yourself," returned the old lady, beaming with satisfaction. "So it really was a success? Yes? My! I certainly should like to have seen it."

"But why were you not there, Aunt Harriet?"

"My Lord, child," answered Aunt Harriet, her face still shining with delight, "I had to stay in the kitchen and wash the dishes."—Everybody's Magazine.

Alfalfa From Asia

The original home of alfalfa seems to have been in southwest Central Asia. The word is Arabic, meaning "the best fodder." In southern Europe it is known as "lucern," and the name was used for a time in several sections of the United States. Persia was apparently the first nation to grow alfalfa. The Persians took it with them when they invaded Greece in 490 B. C. Gradually it was introduced into other European countries.

The Spaniards in the Sixteenth century took the plant to Mexico and South America, and it gradually found its way into what is now the southwest part of the United States. Not until after the middle of the last century, however, did its value become known as a product of irrigated lands, and extension over the West began.—Kansas City Star.

CROSSES MARK DEATH SPOTS ALONG ROADS

Each Marker Represents a Fatal Motor Accident.

Dotting the sides of Ohio's highways throughout the length of the state at frequent and infrequent intervals stand white crosses. They mark spots where automobilists have been killed.

Automobile drivers, rounding a sharp curve, in many sections come squarely upon a white cross, or possibly two or three, mute reminders that one or more persons have been killed at that spot.

Gov. Vic Donahey was responsible for the placing of the crosses. It was his idea that they would help to cut down automobile fatalities by making drivers more cautious. They have not been installed long enough, however, to draw any conclusions.

Many automobile drivers declare they experience a sinking sensation when they suddenly come upon the white crosses. The governor has been condemned for the move on the ground it gives rise to morbid thoughts; others have praised it as being a good "sedative" for reckless drivers.

SAFETY DEMANDS FOR CAR DRIVER

Persons Driving Autos Soon to Pass Examination as to Qualifications.

The day is coming when the law will require all persons to pass examinations proving that they are physically and mentally fit and have sufficient knowledge to drive an automobile safely. Part of this examination will be on just such subjects as the one presented in these lessons.

Persons who should not be allowed to drive cars include:

a. Children below a certain age (usually sixteen).

b. Persons whose height does not permit easy reach of the controlling pedals.

c. Persons who have not sufficient strength to operate control levers easily and positively.

d. Persons under the influence of liquor or drugs.

e. Epileptics or others subject to fits or fainting spells.

f. Persons who do not know and understand the traffic laws, ordinary rules of the road, and other points concerned with safe and efficient automobile operation.

g. Persons with dangerous defective hearing or eyesight.

h. [illegible]es or persons minus arms or legs whose defects interfere with their safe control of an automobile.

i. Persons whose nervous structure is not sound or who do not react quickly.

j. The mentally incompetent.

Laws Are Needed.

Laws have not yet been passed covering all of these points, but we should bear these things in mind because they are essential for our own safety and the safety of others.

The demands for safety are more stringent than the demands of the law and rightly so. Laws are primarily to insure justice. A full appreciation of safety saves lives and limbs no matter who is to blame.

A man may have a mechanically perfect car, but because of careless driving he may cause an accident that results in serious injury or death to himself or others.

Reckless driving is not a demonstration of skill.

A moment or two saved today by reckless speeding is not efficiency, for speeding tomorrow may result in smash that will lay up the car for several days and you for several months. Hurrying to get ahead of a train, a street car, or another vehicle saves only a moment or two at the ultimate destination and the gain is not worth the price; there is too much danger of accident.

Best Drivers Are Careful.

The best drivers are especially careful at dusk or twilight. There is then neither enough daylight nor sufficient artificial light to make objects distinguishable at ordinary distances.

Slow up for all turns in the road. Blind corners are dangerous. When it is impossible to see what is coming from around the corner, be prepared to stop. Sound horn a short distance before the corner.

When installing chains on the rear wheels, install them on both wheels or none at all. Only one chain may result in a serious accident. Chains on all four wheels help the steering of the car.

There are ruts at the bottom of almost every hill. Hitting these ruts at too high a speed may cause the driver to lose control of his car.

Drive slowly at bridges and at culverts. A bad rut or a stone in the road may throw your car against the structure.

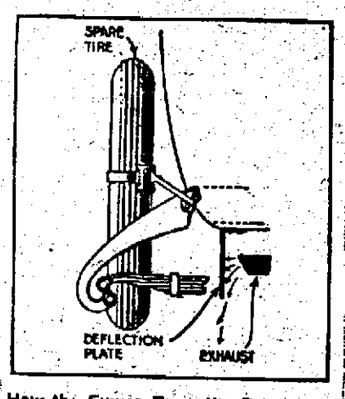

He Puts 'Em to Sleep

An inventor in Cheshire, England, has produced a machine which is said to be a sure sleep producer. The machine throws a series of 12 different colored light rays across the insomnia victim's face, putting him to sleep in fifteen minutes, the inventor claims.

Protecting the Spare Tire From Exhaust Gas

The poisonous gases that issue from the exhaust of an automobile very often cause the rapid deterioration of the spare tire. These fumes curl about the tire, eat away the live ingredients of the carcass, and when the tire is placed upon the wheel the rotten fabric explodes with a loud "plop."

A piece of sheet iron bent and attached to the rear of the car, as illustrated, will deflect the exhaust and thus prevent the gases from injuring the tire. Just for curiosity's sake watch the cars as they go by and note how many of them throw the exhaust fumes into the spare tire. You will be surprised.—Paul Feterston in Popular Science Monthly.

How the Fumes From the Exhaust of a Car Can Be Deflected so They Will Not Injure the Spare Tire.

Many Autoists Neglect Oiling of Vital Parts

The modern motorist by this time has become, as a rule, well educated in the care of his car, save in the single respect of attending to the lubrication of the chassis. The average motorist has learned, perhaps, by the experience of paying $40 or $50 for a new battery, that it pays to attend regularly to its filling and testing.

He has learned, perhaps, through paying for new bearings for his motor that it pays to keep plenty of oil in his crank case.

But it is the average motorist who does not realize the importance of chassis lubrication, because he never has realized sharply just what his neglect in this respect costs him.

He is more apt, very humanly, to blame it upon the maker of the car, and tells his friends that his car has not "stood up" the way it should. If there were some way of making the motorist realize that it is nothing more or less than his own neglect of chassis lubrication that has been the cause of most of his troubles it would go a long way toward prolonging the life and the satisfactory service of most motor cars.

Too Rich Mixture Will Often Cause Motor Heat

Improper carburetor adjustment is often the cause of overheated engines. Too rich mixture results in a prolonged, sluggish ignition causing the intense heat to be maintained over a longer period of time. This causes the water to heat up too quickly and, in its comparatively short cycle of circulation, it cannot become properly cooled, so that an overheated engine results.

The increased heat, due to the prolonged, sluggish ignition caused by a rich carburetor mixture, is transmitted to the circulating water through the medium of the cylinder walls. The rise in the water temperature is instantly recorded by the heat indicator on the radiator cap through the medium of the vapor temperature over the water. The warning of an overheated engine is thus given in ample time before serious damage results.

Tossed Away Fortune in Playful Scuffling

To have a book worth considerably more than a thousand pounds thrown at one's head is an experience which does not fall to the lot of many. It happened, however, to Dr. Adolf Ehrenfelt.

It has just been announced that the Hungarian National museum has acquired this book by private treaty. Although it was on Sotheby's catalogue at a reserve price of £1,000, it is stated that the price actually paid is much in excess of that sum.

The book is the first printed in the Magyar tongue, and is known to collectors as the Codex Ehrenfelt. It contains 51 pages and dates from the year 1490.

Its former owner, Doctor Ehrenfelt, a Viennese lawyer, came into possession of the book in an unusual way. In 1891 he was a student at Nyitra, in what was then northern Hungary. One day, while he was wrestling with a companion, this book was hurled playfully at his head and he pocketed it. It was only many years later that he rediscovered it, examined it, and became aware of its unique character and great value.—London Tit-Bits.

Pertinent Question

If children could be reared free from fear would they be fearless men and women? an exchange asks.

Seems Born Only to Dance Through Life

A strange creature, the dainty May fly. One of the strangest things is that it eats nothing from its cradle to the moment of its death.

Thrust into a world where nearly every living thing is constantly in search of food, the May fly goes its way with never a thought of food, writes W. A. DuPuy in Nature Magazine. Surrounded by creatures that lie in wait and devour each other, the May fly eats not nor thinks of eating. It does not even possess a mouth with which it might eat if it felt so disposed. It comes into the world with a certain amount of vitality in its frail body, it dances gayly until that strength is gone, and dies.

Equally strange is the birth of the May fly, a birth which almost any observer may witness if he happens to be sharp-eyed by the waterside almost anywhere at just the right minute. If he watches closely he may see many tiny creatures as big as house flies emerging from the mud at the bottom of the lake or stream.

Romance and Gloves

A curious atmosphere of romance has always lingered around gloves. The knight's gauntlet was the gage in battle, poisoned gloves were used by the Medici in disposing of rivals, perfumed gloves were revered by lovers.
